FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date of transcription

3/18/92

On March 6, 1992, [redacted] was interviewed at his residence, [redacted] St. Petersburg, Florida (FL). [redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the nature of the interview, and thereafter furnished the following information:

[redacted] stated that he had recently received his social security check and discovered that an additional $64.00 had been deducted because of an increase in his medicaid insurance premium. [redacted] stated that prior to receiving this check, and in compliance with a letter provided with a previous social security check, he notified the SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION that he did not wish to continue this insurance. Despite this notification, when he received his recent check, the additional $64.00 was deducted. [redacted] stated he called the SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION and did not receive satisfaction. After this, he called the "ST. PETERSBURG TIMES" newspaper and several locally elected officials, but none of them could help him.

Following these calls, and after drinking an unknown amount of liquor, [redacted] became very upset and called Congressman C.W. "Bill" YOUNG's St. Petersburg office and demanded that they help him. After getting what he considered the runaround by Congressman YOUNG's office, he told them that if they did not get his money back for him, he was going to go out and buy a gun and shoot Congressman YOUNG and anyone who works for him. [redacted] stated he made this threat to get the attention of the Congressman, so he could get some help with this matter. He stated he never had any intention of carrying out this threat, that he owns no guns, and "would not hurt a flea."

After it was explained to [redacted] that threats on the life of a United States Congressman was a violation of federal law for which he could be prosecuted, [redacted] promised he would make no further threatening calls to anyone. [redacted] was advised that any further threats of this type were very likely to result in his arrest and prosecution.

At approximately 4:00 p.m., on March 6, 1992, [redacted] to United States Congressman C.W. "Bill" Young, Washington, D.C. telephonically advised the Pinellas Resident Agency that [redacted] of St. Petersburg, Florida (telephone number [redacted]) had contacted Congressman Young's St. Petersburg, Florida office and threatened to shoot Congressman Young and anyone who worked for him.

[redacted] advised [redacted] was apparently upset because of a cut in his Social Security check, due to an increase in his medicaid premium. When [redacted] did not receive what he considered to be a favorable response from Congressman Young's office, he threatened to shoot Congressman YOUNG and anyone who worked for him.

Based on this complaint, [redacted] was located, on the same day at his residence, [redacted] St. Petersburg, Florida, and interviewed by SA [redacted] and a St. Petersburg Police Officer, concerning the alleged threat. [redacted] readily admitted he had threatened to go out and get a gun and shoot Congressman Young and anyone who worked for him. [redacted] stated he had no intention of carrying out this threat, that he owns no guns, and "would not hurt a flea." [redacted] stated he was upset because of an increase in his Medicaid costs which had been automatically deducted from his Social Security check, despite his notification to the Social Security Administration that he did not want to continue this insurance. When it did not appear to [redacted] that Congressman Young could immediately correct the problem, he made these threats "to get the Congressman's attention." [redacted] also stated he had been drinking and was slightly drunk at the time the call was made.

[redacted] was forcefully advised that threatening the life of anyone was against the law, and that threatening the life of a U.S. Congressman was a violation of Federal Law for which he could be prosecuted regardless of his intentions. [redacted] was further advised that this matter would be referred to the United States Attorney's Office, and it was still possible that he could be arrested for making these threats. He was also told that if it came to the attention of the FBI that he had made any further threats on anyone's life, every effort would be made to see that he was prosecuted. [redacted] promised he would not make any further threats on the life of Congressman Young or anyone else.

AUSA [redacted] was advised of the above on March 12 1992. She stated she would decline prosecution of [redacted] in this matter, as it appears he lacked the intent to carry out the threatened act.
